

The Hedgehog and the Red Scarf

cuentoseningles.org

Hattie the hedgehog wore a red scarf that her grandmother had knitted. It kept her warm on chilly mornings and made every walk feel special.

One windy day, the scarf slipped from her neck and caught on a high branch. Hattie stretched and jumped, but her little paws could not reach it. She sat beneath the tree, wondering what to do.

A robin landed nearby. "Would you like some help?" he asked. Hattie nodded. The robin flew up, tugged at one loose end, and sent the scarf floating gently down.

"Thank you," said Hattie as she wrapped it around her neck. She noticed a few red threads hanging from the edge. "Could you use these for your nest?"

The robin carried the threads into the tree. That evening, Hattie and her new friend were both warm in their own little homes.

Escucha este cuento en la web

Haz clic para escuchar la narración en inglés.